

J on The Holy Spirit We Are and the Happy Learner
April 27, 2007, Friday, 5:00 PM

The Holy Spirit is within us all. When the dream ends, and the Sonship returns to God, remembering it never left at all, there will no longer be need for the Holy Spirit as an entity seemingly unto itself. As you wander in your dreams, your Father ensured your safe return by linking your perception to him by way of the Holy Spirit. Who decides? How are decisions for good toward truth made? Remember, YOU are spirit. The Holy Spirit is merely that spirit which is one in will with God, which is as you are, you just don't remember. You are a holy spirit. I am a holy spirit. While you dream, you need a Guide who has indeed remembered this fact, this truth. I am that Guide for you. I cannot violate your wishes as you sleep. I CAN Guide you. I cannot inflict my will upon yours, which you continue to believe in your dreams is alien to mine. I can call upon you to remember truth. I can guide you to the light, but only so much as your willingness and fear will allow. You may believe that you are offering full willingness. You are not. The distinction lies within your forgiveness. Where are you looking for fulfillment? When you forgive, do you then wait for something "out there" to change? Do you grow angry when it does not? Then you are still looking in the wrong place. Forgive, and then look within for the modification. Do not await your relief from the world. As long as you continue to do so, you are treating the world as an idol, continuing to seek your death there. You will continue to hide within a body, the idol of idols. Forgive all things of the world. Allow the world to pass by you gently, sink within, and find the light there. For there is nothing in the world, including the body, which will ever satisfy you in any way. When I speak of the happy learner, I in no way imply that the world will suddenly shower upon you gifts and blessings of riches and loveliness, seen with the body's eyes. The happy learner has found the light within and cannot resist the intense attraction to seek it more and more, farther and farther within. For the attraction IS intense, and herein lies your REAL happiness. For how could you not be a happy learner having found this light, the light of your home, the light of your Father, the light of YOU? There is nothing outside of you! The Kingdom of God IS you! I love you... love, -j
