

J on The Spark Within, Emerging as the Heart Awakens

5/9/06, Tuesday, approx. 8:45 AM

The journey for you is just beginning. In a place where there is no place or time. No beginning or end. Only now. Your heart is awakening . Let the energy flow through you as water flows through a mountain stream. Sometimes slowing, sometimes faster, but never stopping. You are here to teach. For you do it now in your every interaction. There is a spark of divinity in your heart which is expanding into your awareness rapidly, and as it is, there is no way but for others to learn from you. Do not fear arrogance, for how could perfection be arrogant of itself? Do not fear doubt. For it is merely the war of the ego fighting with that spark of emerging divinity. The war will rage for a while. Do not fear it. Do not resist it too tightly, as be assured that your true Self will victor, for I am always, always, always at your side, and how can we lose against something so frail and fragile as the imaginary ego? Take my hand, hold it tight, don't let go. Show others your light, for they too will feel the warmth and want to know from where your light originates. Do not be afraid to tell them. As your light shines forth, old layers of pain will burn away. Don't be bothered by that, for instead, rejoice, as that is a signal to your ego that it is melting. Melting away in the tears.